

PhD student position in “Quantitative live imaging of embryonic development” - University of Barcelona

In our lab we use quantitative imaging to study single cell dynamics inside live zebrafish and mouse embryos. We are interested in regeneration, immunity and mechanobiology during early embryogenesis.

website: embryobioimaging.com

recent publication:

Hoijman et al, Nature 2021,
nature.com/articles/s41586-021-03200-3

We are looking for highly motivated candidates with passion for science and strong academic record interested in joining our lab at University of Barcelona

---

If you are interested, contact Dr. Esteban Hoijman (hoijman@ub.edu)